Celebrating the Day of the African Child 2023

Compassion International Kenya celebrated the Day of the African Child by advocating for children's rights in the digital world. This annual event focuses on raising awareness about the challenges faced by African children, and this year's theme was children's rights in the digital environment.

Compassion Participants performing at the DAC celebrations in Busia County.

The national event took place on June 16th in Busia, Kenya, and was organized by the National Government and the National Council of Children Service. Honourable Justice Teresia Matheka, Judge High Court of Kenya, was the guest of honour, emphasizing the importance of protecting children in the digital world-through collaboration and understanding from state and non-state actors.

The event featured performances and presentations from Compassion participants, showcasing themselves as self-advocates to a national audience.

During the national event, the National Director, Samuel Wambugu, and Partnership Facilitator, Martin Matimu, engaged with media for prime-time news interviews to emphasize Compassion's unwavering commitment to providing holistic care and empowering young lives through safe access for all program participants.

Compassion Impacting Children with Digital Access

DAY OF THE AFRICAN

CHILD

“The Rights of The Child in a Digital Environment”

#TulindeWatoto

#DayOfAfricanChild

The overall objective of the Day of the African Child (DAC) 2023 is to raise awareness of child rights in the digital environment and encourage the Organization of African Unity (OAU) Member States and other relevant stakeholders to work towards their achievement.

The promotion of the rights of children in the digital environment entails making the Internet accessible to all children. Lack of internet access remains a primary challenge to children meaningfully participating in the digital sphere. We believe every child should be known, loved and protected.

Since any violation is a barrier to reaching the child's full potential, we focus on protection above all other aspects of development. Compassion International Kenya (CIK) has played a role in promoting and protecting the digital rights of children and youth in our programs, most of whom are from remote and marginalized communities. Most children in our programs struggle with internet access.

To level the playing field between them and their urban counterparts, our program has endeavored to make technology more accessible.

We have availed computers, laptops, and tablets to children/ youth in remote areas to support learning. During the Covid-19 period, CIK provided over 350 learning gadgets to children in schools, enabling them to keep learning. We also helped caregivers acquire phones to receive cash transfers to support their families.

CIK has partnered with over 120 churches and digital learning firms like MwalimuPLUS to roll out an intelligent e-tutoring solution providing self-paced online learning for children at different school levels.

We facilitated the construction of 130 child and youth resource centers equipped with desktop computers and laptops which children could use for general learning and school research/projects.

Biometric systems were rolled out across the centers, enhancing the protection of children in our program centers and during their movement to and from home. The biometric system relays information to caregivers on when their children arrive and leave the program center.

These digital platforms have enabled marginalized children to achieve their dreams in education and acquire professional skills. They have economically empowered them and their families and created a foundation for future stronger/enlightened communities. The effort to keep children safe online continues to be a priority.

Sustaining these gains requires the concerted effort of government, law enforcement agencies and other Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) in creating awareness and implementing the local and international laws that protect children from all forms of online violation.

Compassion International and Power Learn Project Collaboration

National Director - Samuel Wambugu with CEC Trade, Tourism and Marketing, Farida Salim and the Power Learn Project team

In an era where technology and advanced technical skills are increasingly vital, Compassion International joined forces with the Power Learn Project in 2022 to address the need for digital skills among African youths. Recognizing technology's important role in today's world, this collaboration launched the Digital Skills Training (Robotics and Coding) for 50 Youth, aiming to equip 50 young individuals with essential digital competencies in Kenya's Western Region.

The primary objective of the Digital Skills Training for 50 Youth was to prepare and equip young individuals with the necessary digital competencies to access and excel in the opportunities brought about by ongoing technological advancements. By incorporating digital skills into the learning curriculum, the program aimed to empower the participants to thrive in an increasingly technology-driven world. Through this intervention, participants had the opportunity to acquire competitive IT skills, including web design, coding through Python, database management, and Darts.

To facilitate this learning process, the Power Learn Project organized an intensive boot camp that brought together learners from five African countries, namely Kenya, Nigeria, Zambia, South Africa, and Tanzania. The Compassion team cohort was well represented, allowing participants to interact and collaborate with peers across the continent.

The training sessions were designed to be intense yet interactive, focusing on various specialization areas. For instance, after one week of intensive training on project creation, the learners were allowed to form teams, formulate ideas, and implement their projects. Importantly, they learned to push their code to GIT, an essential step in creating their digital profile. The intervention celebrated a notable level of gender representation, with 42% of the participating students being female and 58% male. This achievement highlights the growing interest of female students in IT skills, demonstrating their determination to excel in this field traditionally dominated by males.

National Director - Samuel Wambugu with CEC Trade, Tourism and Marketing, Farida Salim handing certificate to graduate.

In May, the participating students completed the program and graduated with exceptional projects addressing community social challenges. These projects included school management systems, web and mobile applications to support the underprivileged. The students' ingenuity and dedication showcased their ability to leverage their newfound digital skills to make a positive impact in their surroundings.

The partnership between Compassion International and the Power Learn Project has made significant strides in empowering African youths with essential digital skills.

This initiative has provided a platform for the next generation to excel in the rapidly evolving digital landscape by equipping the participants with competitive IT skills and fostering cross-continental collaboration. Through their impressive projects, these young individuals have demonstrated the transformative potential of digital skills in addressing social problems and shaping a brighter future for their communities.

Leadership for Life Intervention

Catherine Wamiti - Senior Manager of Program Support, Samwel Mwaniki - Manager of Program Support and Beatrice Maina - Program Support specialist with some of the Leadership for Life Intervention Graduates.

The Leadership for Life Intervention program recently graduated 80 bright young individuals who successfully finished the four-year course. These 80 participants were able to pursue higher education, receiving guidance on leadership development, entrepreneurship training, and discipleship.

The selection process was based on the 2018 Kenya Certificate of Primary Examination results. The program provided funding for tuition and accommodation expenses for all 80 participants. This year, the graduating group included young individuals who have graduated or will be graduating from a university.

This program is highly valuable for young people as it provides spiritual formation, leadership training, mental health support, problem-solving skills, decision-making abilities, and character development. Through this training, the youth gain a deeper understanding of their purpose and become agents of positive change in their communities, churches, and universities. Additionally, they participate in community service activities like jiggers' campaigns, hospital visits, tree planting, and serving at local churches. Students are also given the opportunity for academic placement, allowing them to apply classroom knowledge to real-world job placement skills.

The program also provides business training and coaching, which enables them to establish small-scale businesses and earn a living while pursuing their studies.

“I have received valuable support and mentorship that have greatly aided me in living my life according to biblical teachings and my desire to improve the world. With the entrepreneurial skills I gained from training, I started a small business selling clothes to my fellow students.”

Celestine Muhonja: -

“The intervention taught me valuable skills for the job market and the world. Through interacting with other young people in my country, I've developed my leadership skills and ability to collaborate with colleagues to solve problems. Laikipia Sports Competition

Compassion Participants playing football.

Laikipia recently hosted various sports events, including ball games, and athletics. All 14 Frontline Church Partners in the Laikipia region participated in the scheduled competitions held from May 2nd to May 4th, 2023. The event took place at Mary Mother Grace Boys High School. The games were categorized into pools A, B, and C for seniors, juniors, and beginners.

The sports included football, 100m races, 200m races, and relay races.

Elisham Nyamwata, the Compassion Partnership Facilitator for the region, and Youth Specialist Douglas Mosei noted the importance of fostering a spirit of healthy competition. They pointed out that competitiveness has been growing because no defending champions won this time.

They also emphasized the need to nurture the talents of young children and have plans for more opportunities to showcase youth talent in the future. Laikipia is already looking forward to next year's Games, which will feature improved structures, security, and facilities for all stakeholders, including players, officials, spectators, and sponsors.

Program Participants Organize Crusade in Kanzinwa Program

Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations [help the people to learn of Me, believe in Me, and obey My words], baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe everything that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always [remaining with you perpetually—regardless of circumstance, and on every occasion], even to the end of the age.”

Matthew 28:19-20 Amplified Bible (AMP)

A moment of Parise and Worship by the Program Participants.

The past few months have been fruitful for our Frontline Church Partner in Kanzinwa. They had a successful four-day crusade early this year. The event, organized by the Compassion participants with support from the Church, Child Development Workers, Iserve Africa apprentices, and teachers, was a successful event to share the word of God.

The program participants were extensively involved in the crusade activities, sharing the word of God, dancing, singing in the choir, praying, and offering a word of encouragement to the members of the Kanzinwa community. The crusade was graced by over 200 community members from Kanzinwa, including the participant’s caregivers and church members from different denominations.

The crusade offered an opportunity for the growth of our supported program participants to learn how to share the word of God and a chance for them to be rooted and shaped by the Gospel. This is a core part of our holistic approach, exposing participants to spiritual growth.

2,450 Souls Accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior in Kenya Outreach Mission

Jesus commissioned his disciples, “Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age.”

Mathew 28:19-20

Partnership Facilitator, Beatrice Ruiru sharing the gospel during one of the schools' missions.

In keeping with this great commission, Compassion Kenya staff, in partnership with 18 Frontline Church partners, organized an outreach mission to Ganze, Kilifi County, one of the most unreached regions in Kenya, intending to evangelize and share the good news of our Lord Jesus Christ with individuals and the community at large. Over 40 Compassion Kenya staff and 130 missionaries from Frontline Church Partners were at the one-week mission from the 22nd to the 28th of May 2023.

Speaking to all staff after the mission, Emmanuel Okonda, Partnership Facilitator and the mission coordinator, said, “We have seen the hand of God. Because of the huge number of missionaries, we divided the mission ground into two groups, enabling us to reach more than 5,000 individuals with God’s word. We witnessed God’s healing power, restoration, deliverance, and saving grace.”

Out of the over 5,000 people reached by the gospel, a total of 2,450 persons received Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, and 13 people who had backslidden rededicated their lives to Christ. All those who heeded to the call of salvation were connected to a bible believing church for follow-up and discipleship.

James Mulandi, Manager of Partnership, also one of the missionaries, noted,

“Kilifi County is one of the regions in Kenya where many people have been bound by witchcraft. When a child is born, instead of being taken to a hospital for medical care, the child is taken to a witch doctor for protection against diseases, harm, and evil spirits. This means a person is bound by witchcraft from a young age.”

Caregiver Empowerment

Building Skills of Caregivers in Kisauni

A group of caregivers after getting their certification from the Association of Women in Agriculture-Kenya (AWAK)

In Partnership with the Association of Women in Agriculture-Kenya (AWAK), whose objective was to empower vulnerable mothers living in Kisauni informal settlements economically, we have collaborated to support 101 mothers of our program participants.

We have worked to build their capacity through training in urban farming, food processing, charcoal briquette making (as a form of clean energy), business development skills, and mental health support. We worked to provide food processing and multi-story garden start-up kits to improve their food security, enhance their participation in climate action, increase their income, and reduce poverty.

The program trained 101 mothers whose children were registered participants with skills to manage a vertical story kitchen garden and establish an indigenous vegetable nursery within their limited spaces—helping them to embrace urban farming.

Eighty-four of the mothers of our program participants were equipped with skills in baking fortified cakes, bread, and scones to enhance value addition using indigenous available flours, e.g., cassava, sorghum, and turmeric.

The AWAK board secretary and Mombasa County Director for Agriculture honoured all the participants with certificates for completing the program. The initiative had a significant impact on the lives of mothers, offering a space for self-empowerment and growth to become a better support system for their families.

Kwale County Families Empowered with Sustainable Integrated Farming Practices

In a collaborative effort, our Frontline Church Partner and the Ministry of Agriculture have supported 24 of our participant's caregivers, like Josephat in Kwale, who are part of an Angaza self-help group with sustainable practices for diverse farming activities. The collaboration has held workshops, demo farms, support with starting capital, and showed best practices of integrated farming techniques across the project.

The caregivers have been able to grow their vegetable outputs through diversification, helping feed their families and even gain an income. Some have started a chicken farm, an option that can thrive in climatic conditions, due to exposure to knowledge on farming options from the collaboration. Kwale County in Kenya is one of the areas affected by prolonged droughts and erratic rainfall with constant crop failures, making the area more vulnerable to food insecurity.

It is a priority for us to support caregivers like Josephat and the others in the self-help group as if they are empowered, the children's success is even more attainable.

“Attending workshops on vegetable farming helped me learn how to create a kitchen garden. Now, my garden provides enough vegetables for my family and even supplies my neighbors. I also gained skills in poultry farming and now have over 20 chickens that provide a source of income.”

said Josephat a Program Participant Caregiver.

Tree Planting

Improving The Environment for a Sustainable Future in Migori

“The Lord took the man and put him in the Garden of Eden to work it and take care of it,” we recognize that all created things belong to God and that we are accountable to Him as stewards of the creation.

Genesis 2:15

Caregivers with tree seedlings.

One of the objectives the holistic child development program seeks to achieve is to equip the program participants with how to safeguard a healthy and stable environment where every individual has an opportunity to thrive.

Since 2020, PEFA Kurutiyange in Migori County has been on a journey to conserve its environment through afforestation. Through this effort, the center has planted 30,000 trees, mostly in homes and some churches and schools in the community. To date, 200 families have each planted between 30 to 150 trees.

30,000

trees planted since 2020 by PEFA Kurutiyange in Migori County to conserve its environment through afforestation.

The project is situated in a region with high yearly rainfall. Unfortunately, human activities such as gold mining, grazing, and clearing natural vegetation for agriculture have negatively impacted the environment, making it vulnerable.

To counteract these effects, we have embarked on a tree-planting project to plant 1M trees, promote environmental resilience, restoration and secure a better future for the people in the area.

The project has collaborated with the Kenya Forestry Research Institute for the past three years to select the most suitable tree seedlings for our environment. Our caregivers have received Gravellia Robusta and Eucalyptus Grandis, which have proven to work well in the area.

According to Laureen, the Project Director in Migori, the PEFA Kurutiyange Program prioritizes the protection and sustainability of the environment through tree planting. This initiative aims to manage water, reduce, and intercept stormwater, and enhance runoff water quality. Additionally, planting trees provides shade and aesthetics; the goal is to have a small “forest” in every participant’s home.

Joyce is one of the program participants whose family embraced tree planting for both conservation and commercial purposes. She has planted 150 trees through the initiative. Today the household has a woodlot with a total of 450 trees which includes the caregiver’s own effort.

We have partnered with Ushindi, a Frontline Church Partner in Kilifi for a tree planting project. We aim to plant 500 mature trees over the next decade in collaboration with our program participants and caregivers. By doing so, we want to ensure our participants are compassionate and positively impact their community.

In 2021, we distributed 10 casuarina seedlings to 250 caregivers, resulting in 2500 seedlings planted. Out of this number, 1850 seedlings survived in different villages.

We continued our afforestation efforts in July 2022 by giving 297 caregivers 20 seedlings each, planting 5940 seedlings. Unfortunately, due to a prolonged drought, only 2000 seedlings survived. Thus, an additional 300pcs of casuarina seedlings were donated and survived.

Despite the challenges posed by the drought, the Scout club of our program participants continued their efforts to conserve the environment and restore their villages by planting an additional 1400 seedlings.

Celebrating World Menstrual Hygiene Day

May 28 is Menstrual Hygiene Day, an annual occasion to raise global awareness about the importance of good menstrual hygiene management. The goal is to create a world where menstruation is accepted as a natural part of life.

Frontline Church Partners in Baringo County are implementing the Sustainable Menstrual Health, Hygiene, and Sanitation program to improve menstrual hygiene among adolescent program participants and their households. The program aims to spread awareness and provide access to menstrual management products.

So far, the Menstrual Health and Hygiene Awareness sessions have reached 1,016 program participants, with more awareness sessions planned. The goal is to empower adolescent girls to openly discuss menstrual matters, which will help reduce related challenges such as school absenteeism and teen pregnancies.

Additionally, 910 caregivers and 734 community members have attended the same awareness sessions.

On World Menstrual Hygiene Day, the implementing Frontline Church Partners organized a range of activities to break taboos, end the stigma surrounding menstruation, and raise awareness about the challenges related to menstrual products. The awareness sessions also included education about menstruation and the use and care of reusable sanitary pads, which are cheaper to access and reduce environmental degradation caused by non-biodegradable disposable pads made of up to 90% non-reusable plastic.

The International Day of Innocent Children Victims of Aggression

#InternationalDayofInnocentChildrenVictimsofAggression

June 4, 2023

June 4th marks the International Day of Innocent Children Victims of Aggression. Tragically, many African nations have been ravaged by armed conflict, putting children in harm's way. Shockingly, children as young as ten have been forced to fight in these wars.

In the "The Graça Marcel report," which addresses the plight of children affected by conflict around the world, it's stated that "war violates every right of a child – the right to life, to be with family and community, to develop their personality, and to be nurtured and protected. Disrupting children's social networks and primary relationships, which support their physical, emotional, moral, cognitive, and social growth, can have profound physical and psychological implications."

As child advocates, it's our goal to increase our capacity to protect those who have suffered from aggression in our community. Everyone has a role to play in safeguarding children from the dangers of war and conflict. This requires a collective effort from governments, institutions, non-state organizations, and religious institutions.

As advocates for children, we stress the importance of shielding them from violence. We accomplish this by raising awareness and educating children, workers, caregivers, church leaders, and others about humanitarian and human rights laws. Furthermore, we protect children's lives whenever they are in danger and work with governments to ensure accountability for the well-being and safety of children in conflict-affected areas.

Compassion International Kenya Unveils Inspiring Findings in Annual Report: Empathy in Action Transforms Lives

We have had the privilege to work with our Frontline Church Partners across the country with whom we shared many of the same heartaches and victories - yet remained resolute in ensuring that every child is known, loved, and protected.

Throughout the year, we focused on several priorities essential to advancing our mission of 'Releasing children from poverty in Jesus' name.' Working closely with our 466 Frontline Church Partners, we supported over 136,000 babies, children, and youth across 31 counties to implement a holistic child and youth development program that addresses the unique needs of individual program participants and local issues. We are excited to have graduated 8,273 of our program participants during the year, having been disciplined and equipped with education, training, and life skills to engage as empowered citizens.

The current global food crisis, caused by extreme weather patterns, impacted over 4.2 million people in the northeastern parts of Kenya and the Horn of Africa. It has directly impacted 196 of our Church partners in multiple ways.

In response, we supported over 46,000 families with food packs, water, and cash transfers to cater to their immediate needs. The lingering effects of the Covid-19 pandemic and the ongoing Russia-Ukraine war led to rising inflation and poverty rates, further exacerbating the situation of people already facing food insecurity. Our response has been two-fold. In the short term, we are meeting the urgent nutrition needs of children and their families while working towards sustainable, long-term solutions to help them achieve food security and build resilience. We recognize it is a task that requires all hands on deck, and we are keen to leverage strategic partnerships.

Compassion International Kenya is grateful for the invaluable contribution made by our supporters, church partners, staff, and program participants (babies, children, and youth). We also acknowledge the contribution of key stakeholders, including the support from various government agencies and other strategic partners. We believe that together we will continue to advance the achievement of important life outcomes for the registered program participants and release them from poverty in Jesus' name.

COACHING

Do you realize that every individual has value, skills, abilities, and potential for growth?

One effective way to tap into this potential is through coaching, which may pose some challenges, but ultimately can be extremely rewarding.

Effective feedback exchange is the cornerstone of developing coaching.

To effectively make progress in your role as a leader, it's crucial to take the time to evaluate your leadership style, the way you are being led, and your decision-making process. Developing the ability to provide constructive feedback and navigate difficult conversations is also important. To create a successful plan for personal growth, it is essential to carefully examine your approach to leadership and how it impacts your thought processes and decision-making abilities.
